A4A Carrier Actions Supporting Spirit's Customers and Employees

American Airlines is doing the following things to care for Spirit's customers and team members:

- We are implementing rescue fares on Spirit routes where American also offers nonstop service. (Note: American serves 70 of the 72 airports Spirit presently serves, and 67 of the specific routes Spirit currently operates.)
- We are reviewing opportunities to add additional capacity, including utilizing larger aircraft on critical routes — to support as many affected passengers as possible.
- We will provide transportation for Spirit team members who have been displaced on a work trip.
- We are creating a microsite on jobs.aa.com, and we will hold recruiting events in the coming weeks in order to help welcome qualified Spirit team members to American.

Delta Air Lines is taking a range of actions to support travelers who may be impacted by recent developments at Spirit:

- We are offering reduced, nonrefundable rescue fares in affected markets over the next five days to help travelers book last-minute travel.
- These fares are available even on flights that are close to full, giving travelers more options when availability is limited.
- These options are available across all domestic markets where Spirit operates, including routes Delta serves nonstop and through one-stop connections via our hubs.
- We've also extended these reduced fare options to all routes between the U.S. and Latin America where Spirit operates.
- Travelers can access these rescue fares and find more information by visiting delta.com.

JetBlue Airways is stepping in to support Spirit customers and team members through the following actions:

- To assist stranded Spirit customers with imminent travel, JetBlue is offering $99 one-way fares to individuals with proof of a valid Spirit itinerary for the same route (or sister cities) for travel through Wednesday, May 6. These customers should call 1-800-JETBLUE to discuss their situation.
- JetBlue will also cap all Blue Basic fares at $299 on JetBlue-operated nonstop routes to and from FLL and SJU that were also operated by Spirit. These caps apply to new itinerary purchases made through May 8, 2026, for travel May 2 – 8, 2026.

- To support Spirit pilots and flight attendants who may be stranded following the airline's shutdown, JetBlue will assist with their travel by extending its jumpseat agreement for the next two weeks, subject to space availability and limited to cabin seating.
- JetBlue plans to offer preferential employment interviews to qualified Spirit team members impacted by the shutdown who apply to join JetBlue.
- Over the past year, JetBlue continued to grow in FLL – launching service to 21 new cities and increasing our flight count by nearly 32 daily departures – building further depth and connectivity in our South Florida focus city.
